a term under which other ("non-basic") colour terms can be classified. For example, the English colour terms 'scarlet', 'strawberry' and 'magenta' are not basic because they can all be classified under the basic term 'red'. 'Pink', however, is a basic term because it cannot be classified under any other colour book by Brent Berlin and Paul Kay. Berlin and Kay's work proposed that the basic color terms in a culture,

All cultures have terms for black/dark and white/bright.
